My Opinion on the Reading Challenge!

By: Yumna Khalifa

Creative minds swimming in a sea full of words with hooking sentences and all. A hard guess but I'm talking about the reading challenge! an event where all parents and students get to communicate and interact with each other, each class had their own theme so you can imagine how great it was. everyone was willing to participate in it since it was such a unique thing that our school did for us and I'm sure that we as students learned from this experience, every class had decorated their area based on the theme and along with that, we had an entertaining program that was the introduction of the event.

Both boys and girls had team worked to attract students, teachers, and parents to visit their booth. All looked stunning and I'm sure everyone has a favourite one, so about the students as I said each class and the students in it make a chart about their favourite book and this way students can learn new books to read and hear other's opinion about the book that they read. In the end of this, we as students learned how to communicate with parents and other students and this event got us closer and really learned about the community in our school everyone was there and it was a lot of fun, surprisingly we learned and had fun at the same time. It was a blast! I hope we do this again soon.

Sheikh Zayed and his Ideologies on Education

By: Khaled Mohammed

Our Great founding father, Sheikh Zayed, once said that “The real asset of any advanced nation is its people, especially the educated ones. The prosperity and success of the people are measured by the standard of their education.” Such strong and mighty words from a wise leader.

This quote is something I strongly believe in. It empowers me. It makes me believe that I am an important part of my community, of this country. I hold the key of the future. A future where everything my elders are working on will be in my succession. I am the keeper of information and knowledge. I am entrusted with a responsibility to succeed and make this country more than what it is now.

I am a child of UAE. My father, Sheikh Zayed, is a great man. He instilled all his wisdom so that we can all believe that we are destined for something great. I thank him for that. There’s no greater way than to show our gratitude for him than dedicating 2018 as his year. This year we celebrate his great deeds, his wise teachings, the values he believes in and passed through the next generation of UAE citizens, the future he wants us to have and the empowerment he shares to all people, young and old.

He is my personal hero. He inspires me to dream big and that I can do anything if I believe in myself. He guaranteed a bright future in store for me and all the youth of UAE. He motivates me in striving hard to be great in my studies because I also want to fulfill his promise that UAE will set a mark in the world. I want to be part of the community he dreamt of. A prosperous and successful country known by all. I want to be a proud bearer of the UAE community; proud that I belong to a country where its citizens take value in the importance of education, because people with good education are the most important resource of a country. We are the key to a country’s success and I want to join this movement, our father, Zayed, started. I will be his champion.

Virtual Robots

By: Hamad Al Ameri

The Virtual Robotics started 10 years ago, as a tool for engineers. Before investing time and money in building a real robot, it would be advantageous to have some way of testing on a digital prototype.

Why virtual robots?:

There are many benefits to adding simulation to the MINDSTORMS® experience, but a few of the more compelling reasons are given below:

Perhaps the most obvious benefit is that by using a simulated robot we can make programs to work with the robot, even if it isn’t available. For Example, your robotics club might only have a single MINDSTORMS® robot, but the whole team could be working and programming on a digital version of that same competition robot from home.

Will robots take over our jobs?

By: Motaz Pharoan

How much time do you think it will take for automation to take over our jobs from us? According to a 2013 study, more than 50% of all jobs in the world could potentially be automated in the next 20 years or so. But, automation has been around for decades, what is the difference now?

There is no doubt that innovation has made human labor a lot more fluid and smooth and easy and even more productive. This means, for example, that ten hours of human work could be done 10 times better in only 1 hour. This disposed of many jobs and at the same time created jobs that were better for professional workers. Therefore, it worked well for the majority of people and living standards improved as a whole.

In the blink of an eye, the rules were different. Our jobs are being taken over by machines way faster and more frequent than before and more than the amount of jobs they create. That's worrying, right?... But do you think that innovation will save us will save us like before? While the new information industries are exploding, jobs are becoming fewer and fewer. As statistics show, google employed 58,000 people in 2012, but with its rise as a virtual company based on the internet, it had destroyed more than 100,000 jobs for other companies.

Cars were the innovation of the past that converted our way of living, our infrastructure, and our cities. Millions of people found new jobs because of that in the past 100 years, but the industry as a whole does not create as many jobs as it used to. Even with the rise of electric cars, not too many jobs are being created as there used to be before.

But, what about the internet? Technology is dependent on internet and it is an essential part of almost all industries. But, still, the jobs created are not enough to keep up with the growth of the population and a new generation of machines is slowly taking.

While humans have their fears about future jobs, the Information Age and modern automation could be a huge opportunity to change human society in a positive manner and reduce poverty and inequality drastically.

LAUGHTER

(By: Rowa Radwan)

What is laughter? Laughter is the act of laughing; a sound emitted from a living creature when feeling at happiness. But, what truly resembles laughter?

Laughter comes in different forms. Funny, happy, loud and maybe even quiet-the chuckling type of laughter! But, true laughter comes from the heart, as does happiness. It does not come from the brain, when command to, or when you force it. It comes when you feel the bubbles inside your tummy rumble, when someone or something makes you smile so wide that you can't help but give in.

“Laughter is wine for the soul-laughter soft, or loud and deep, tinged with seriousness-the hilarious declaration made by man that life is worth living.” – Sean O’ Casey. It means, laughter is the reason we live, the reason why we meet, why we discover, why we interact. To smile, to be happy, to laugh.

A Speck of Hope

(Poem by: Reem Khaled)

I open my eyes to see the darkness
So I search for little hope
But when I think searching is useless
With the day ill start to cope
Am I exaggerating?
Or is it the seek of attention
It's hard to stop pretending
But it's even harder to mention
It all started with a smile
But it wasn't the smartest thing I did
When everything started to pile
It was the tears that I shed
"I will give it a try"
I want it to end
I don't know the reason why
But, my life, I have to extend
I lack the feel
But I feel sorry
When will it all become real
Cause everything seems blurry
Will I see the light?
I'll keep on waiting
It's like flying a kite
When it's heavy raining

Sheikh Zayed, Our Leader

(By: Sultan Dzumabhaev)

During 1971,
Across the Middle East
A nation was built,
By an honorable man.
Sheikh Zayed is his name,
Everyone adored him
And embraced his fame
Now on its 46th year,
People all over UAE
Sheds their tears
Not because of sorrow and misery,
But because of happiness and victory.
